

Improve Boys' Writing and Inspire Reluctant Writers

During this day teachers will:

- Explore practical ideas for engaging boys and reluctant writers.
- Examine the use of film to inspire writing.
- Develop confidence in the use of drama techniques which really make a difference to the quality of pupils' writing.
- Consider key messages from current research and examples of good practice.

Thursday 23rd February 2017 at Glendorgal Hotel, Newquay

Are you looking for practical ways to motivate and inspire reluctant writers? Is boys' writing an issue in your school? This day will focus on the latest research and examples of best practice in schools. We will examine interactive teaching strategies including the use film and drama to engage boys and underachieving writers. We will also explore the use of the outdoor environment to inspire writing. This day is suitable for Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2 class teachers and English Subject Leaders who wish to develop this approach throughout the school.

Teachers: £169 +VAT Second and third delegates: £109+VAT.

Courses run from 9.30am till 3.30pm (coffee from 9.00am) and include a two course lunch.
