

Encouraging the Positives and Managing the Challenges

A Behaviour Management Course designed for Teaching Assistants

We all know, that supporting pupils who display challenging behaviour in primary schools can be challenging and exhausting.

In order for teaching assistants to be confident and competent in their role, it is essential that schools ensure individuals are well trained, have the opportunity to self-reflect and develop a deep knowledge and understanding of behaviour management. This course will give TAs with a range of experience, lots of practical tips that can be implemented instantly.

Teaching assistants will have the opportunity to:

- Identify how positive behaviours can be encouraged and planned for.
- Explore why some pupils may display challenging behaviour.
- Consider how adult responses can influence behaviours.
- Understand the seven phases of behaviour de-escalation and recognise the roles and responsibilities of TAs at each stage.
- Develop a range of practical strategies which can be implemented immediately.

Course Tutor: Sonya Herbert
